What was accomplished last week:

Last week our team worked on defining some of our initial user stories:

More will be implemented as we progress further into the project and need to realize more features.

We spent some time organizing our GitHub repository as well, generating a batch of tickets that'll be worked on throughout this term and the spring term.

Plans for coming week:

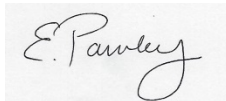

Not too much development to progress through this week as we plan on writing and linking requirements across all of our tickets, especially the ones labeled with "widget". Our figma has existing designs for these widgets, we need to implement written requirements on exact behaviors for each of these.

We plan on starting our initial flutter workspace and separating it into two sides, a mobile student UI and a faculty web dashboard.
